ELKS THEATRICALS.

The Local Lodge Entertain With a Complimentary Play and Dance.

The Elks Hall was crowded to its capacity Saturday night to witness the entertainment given under the auspices of the House Committee. A temporary stage was erected at one end of the assembly hall and seats were provided for the two hundred and more guests who filled the parlors and hall long before the hour for the curtain was rung up.

The play presented was "The Marble Arch" a one-act comedy with a number of startling and amusing situations which kept the audience in an uproar of laughter. The plot was centered about a capricious widow, running away from an unknown admirer, who has serious intentions of marrying her. Without identity of either becoming known to the other, they meet under the roof of a newly wedded couple whose guests they are. Through a series of natural mistakes the innocent husband becomes involved in the love affairs of the couple, and experiences considerable difficulty in explaining to his jealous wife, his position in the matter. The marble arch is a rendezvous where the lively widow meets her fate, whom she believes at the time to be her friend's husband. Later when introductions are made all around, the various cases of mistaken identity are cleared up, the injured wife is appeased and the widow and gallant lover made happy.

Mrs. A. G. Curtis as Constance Cameron, running away from unknown suitor portrayed the part with a touch and finish that was delicious and refreshing.

W. C. Cook was Capt. Trentham, from India, in pursuit of a wife and not knowing who or where she was. Mr. Cook put his usual personality into the character and carried the audience by storm with his earnestness and impetuosity. Miss Genevieve Venable made a charming bride of two months, who doted on her husband but became jealous of the other woman's pretended design upon him. Jack Merewether, newly married, was ably carried out by W. I. Madeira, who played the part intelligently and with ease.

After the platform and scenery were removed by the stage carpenters, the hall was transformed into a ball room with canvas floor. Dancing followed until long past the midnight hour, when the old year went and the new year came in. Besides an overflowing bowl of punch in an ante room, refreshments of coffee and nut sandwiches were served during the evening. The affair was enjoyed by one of the largest crowds that have attended the many popular social affairs of the local Lodge of Elks.

ANOTHER JAP MURDER.

A Japanese With Head Crushed Dies of Injuries.

On Sunday night thugs, presumably belonging to the same gang who operated here under Funakoshi and Watanabe, assaulted and killed Moriama, a professional gambler and desperate character residing in Smithville.

The Japanese were celebrating New Years all day Sunday and Monday, and as usual there is more or less fighting among those who imbibe too freely. The police were startled Sunday night by a telephone message to the effect that a Japanese had been stabbed to death in Nippon Alley opposite Moohau Park. When the deputy sheriff arrived, he found Moriama slashed almost to pieces. From the excited crowd of Japanese, little could be learned of the affair. The wife of the wounded man charged Mori, a fellow countryman with the deed.

It appears Moriama had been carousing during the afternoon with several other Japanese and was sleeping off the effects of his intoxication, when he was called from his home by Mori, who is suspected of committing the crime. The police believe there was more than one man who took part in the assault. The man's skull was crushed in by a heavy blow between the eyes, besides three heavy gashes in his right thigh, from which he bled to death yesterday morning. There was a cut across his forehead and across each ear, showing there had been a struggle with his assailants. The cutting took place nearby to the man's home and as there are no eye witnesses, the police are at sea. Every effort was made to save the man, but the loss of blood resulted in death Monday morning.

Large Consignment of Game.

Owing to the belated arrival of the S. S. Enterprise, which was expected before the holiday season, a large stock of game intended for the Christmas season arrived in cold storage consigned to Demosthenes Cafe too late and is now being sold at cost price. Mr. Lycurgus, the local restaurateur says he will barely get freight and cost of shipment, but he will dispose of the game at sacrifice prices in order to get rid of the large supply on hand. Mallard ducks are sold for $3.25 a pair or $1.75 each. Sprig ducks are offered at $2.25 a pair or $1.25 apiece, and any quantity of teal ducks may be had for 75 cents each. All of this game is cold storage and it is claimed to be in first class condition.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

Terrible Ending of A. E. Tulloch in a Charcoal Pit.

While working in a charcoal pit on his Olau homestead at 22 miles, Volcano road, on Monday afternoon, December 26th, A. E. Tulloch was crushed to death by the caving in of the bank. When discovered by the rescuers he was submerged beneath tons of earth and when brought to fresh air all signs of life were extinct.

Mr. Tulloch was one of the pioneers in the settlement of Olau. Originally he was engaged in coffee culture, without success, and of late years has been planting cane and bananas. Recently, after correspondence with a large iron works in the East, who desired a special character of charcoal for their furnaces, Mr. Tulloch decided to embark in charcoal making on an extensive scale. The iron manufacturers, so it is alleged, were much pleased with the charcoal made from the hard olau wood, and promised to take all Mr. Tulloch could make at a much better figure than is obtainable for the same product in Hawaii.

In carrying out his project, Mr. Tulloch was constructing a series of permanent charcoal kilns, and it is supposed was undertaking to face his pits with masonry when the fearful accident occurred which caused his death. The weight of the earthen roof was too great, and the dead man was suffocated by the tons of earth which enveloped him. The body, which was found in an erect position, was extricated from the mass of earth by F. G. Snow, a neighbor, with the aid of a gang of farm laborers.

The remains were brought to Hilo Tuesday and the funeral took place from the First Foreign Church at 3 o'clock the same afternoon. The deceased was 58 years of age, and left a daughter, Miss Elma Tulloch, and two sons, the oldest of whom is 20 years of age. The family were practically destitute and only through the kindly assistance of Mrs. J. T. Walsh and other friends have they been provided for. Mr. Tulloch had been a struggling small farmer in Olau, working patiently and faithfully in the hope of making a success in some of his ventures. His homestead, which consists of a hundred acres of cane and coffee land, is heavily involved in debt, and at the time of his death there was only $8 in cash in the house. However, a popular subscription was immediately started by W. S. Terry, who has been able to raise enough to meet the funeral expenses and temporarily assist the family. The two sons have accepted employment as laborers on the road construction work with Benton & Arioli, contractors. The daughter will probably be found a position as teacher in the public schools.

A Kaleidoscope Supper.

The "Rainbow Supper" given by the Ladies' Guild of St. James Mission on Thursday evening last, from an artistic and financial point of view, was one of the most successful church affairs given. The supper was under the direct supervision of Mrs. Henry Hayes and a capable corps of assistants, and both decorations and edibles were of an unusually high order. Pestoed across the ceiling of the Hilo Hotel parlors were a series of shaded electric lamp globes, giving forth every color of the rainbow. The tables were likewise arranged in colors, the decorations and candle shades corresponding with the respective lights under which the tables were placed. Dainty misses, prettily gowned in cap and apron of the color to match the several tables, were the waitresses, and were kept busy until a late hour serving the swarm of guests. Other refreshments in the way of lemonade and candy were dispensed at an adjoining booth, which was a center of attraction. After the rooms were cleared dancing was indulged in to music furnished by the Carvalho orchestra. During the evening the Hilo Band rendered a splendid program in the hotel grounds, which added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

Entertain Hilo Belles.

A bud lunch was given by Mrs. Geo. Carter for the Misses Ivy and Ruth Richardson on Monday. The Misses Richardson, who have lately returned from abroad, are charming girls, and on Monday they looked particularly well in their fetching light frocks. There were twenty guests and Mrs. Holloway presided at one table and Mrs. George Carter at the other. The tables looked very lovely with violets scattered over the cloth and baskets of these same sweet blossoms in the center. Maidenhair ferns made a charming contrast and the pretty young girls gave the finishing touch to a very pretty picture. The place-cards were pretty trifles embellished with the Carter crest. Among those present were: Misses Gardie, Helen, Alice and Mary Macfarlane, Miss Ella Wright, Miss Alice Jones, Miss Marion Scott, Miss Helen Kimball, Miss Jennie Giffard, Miss Sophie Judd, Miss Genevieve Dowsett, Miss Violet Makee, and Miss Nellie Kitchen. — Bulletin.

Card of Thanks.

The ladies of St. James Mission wish to express their gratitude and appreciation to their many friends, who, by their donations and patronage, made a success of the "Rainbow Supper." Special thanks are due to the pretty waitresses for their services and to Mr. Carvalho and the members of the Hilo band, whose generous gift of the music added so much to the pleasure of the evening.

Reid-Castendyk.

The marriage of Mrs. Bernice Halstead Reid to Christian Castendyk took place last evening at the St. Clement's Chapel. The ceremony was very pretty, though not ostentatious. Members of the family and intimate friends only were invited. They filled the church, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mr. Castendyk was attended by August Humburg as best man, and Frank Armstrong, Mr. Rohrig and Mr. Hugo acted as ushers. Mrs. Reid entered with her brother, Frank Halstead, and the impressive Episcopal marriage service was said by Rev. John Osborne. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the Halstead homestead on Makiki street. The honeymoon will be spent at Haleiwa, after which Mr. and Mrs. Castendyk will make their home in Hilo, where Mr. Castendyk is assistant manager of Hackfeld & Co's branch establishment.—Bulletin, December 27th.
